Re: US v Clarkson and PN. No. 8:05cv2734-HH

Dear Attorney Schaeffer:

In your letter dated January 23, 2008 you mentioned that I was not supposed to be involved with my book on Independent Contractors Agreements.

I agree that the Magistrate ruled against that book and you clearly wanted that part of the court order. However, this book was not proscribed in the Judge's order, even though I assumed it would be.

When the order came down, I gave directions for that book to be removed from my website and my bookstore. However, upon studying the court order some more, I discovered that book was not covered in the court order, even though the employee leasing program was. These are two separate programs even though they share some similarities. Therefore, I cancelled the instructions to remove the ICA book from my activities.

I am not going to fight on this. I have ordered that book to be removed from my website and premises. The book should be removed from the website by now but I have not had the chance to double check.

I will respond on other subjects soon.

Yours,

Robert Clarkson
